Atchison Village is a housing coop built in the 1940s for WWII shipyard workers. Now part of the historic Rosie the Riveter/World War II Homefront National Historical Park, the 450 units are spaced around 40 acres, a city park, a community building with the office, meeting hall, and credit union. The Corporation is cooperatively owned and managed by its members to provide housing on a nonprofit basis.

Price $163,000 includes maintenance, water, and City trash pickup. HOA monthly fee.
